Hiya!

(Thanks for the address for your card )

I don't like the rewording at: "...whilst having a positive impact in their families and friends..." We intentionally say that we see/drive "generational impact over people's families". It's to do with breaking that generational cycle of parent to child prison pipeline. "Positive impact" is very woolly, and it's also not the same meaning.

In the text, it starts off referring to TRJ in the third person, and part way thro it switches to first person "we, our" .... Either is fine, but needs to be consistent!
