(Happy to talk publicly, but am just sending to you so as not to spam everyone else... but feel free to share.)

I had already had private 1:1 meetings with [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] to express an interest, before the email came out last week from [REDACTED], implying everyone would get some share of something.

No further news since from him, so I am starting to draw my own conclusions?! But if I am overly pessimistic – yes we are still keen to be in a partnership!

Dear All,

Just a quick email to all our ESF CLLD projects that are eligible to bid for monies under the current UKSPF People and Skills call.

I've spoken to a few of you and we've received emails from some of you as well... It looks like the opportunities to join in with a bigger consortium are limited and the offers may not be what the projects were hoping for.

I'm wondering if you'd like to let me know if you've joined any of the bigger consortia? Perhaps you've been invited to join but decided the lead partner's offer was not right for your organisation? Or the conversations are still taking place and you're still not sure what's happening?

We're also trying to think if we can help in any way before the deadline this Friday.

Please feel free to respond however you feel most comfortable – to all on this email, to me individually or we can arrange to have an individual chat via Teams/ phone. Or would it be worth putting in a quick joint Teams call tomorrow to talk about it collectively?
